

José Luis Bartha, Professor in Obstetrics and Gynecology, University Autonoma of Madrid. Head of Department of Obstetrics and Maternal-Fetal Medicine, University Hospital La Paz, Madrid

Dr José L Bartha, M.D. Ph.D. was graduated at the University of Malaga, Spain. He got his Ph.D. degree at the University of Seville, Spain where he also specialized in Obstetrics and Gynecology. His main research lines and clinical activity are in the field of the Maternal and Fetal Medicine. He has been Consultant Senior Lecturer in Maternal and Fetal Medicine at the University of Bristol / St Michael's Hospital in the UK and Titular Professor and Head of the Division of Maternal and Fetal Medicine in the Universtity Hospital Puerta del Mar in Cadiz Spain. He is an expert in all the fetal diagnostic (ultrasound, non-invasive and invasive) and therapeutical procedures. He has published more than 150 papers and book chapters, most of them in high impact international journals. He also has participated in many international and national congresses as invited speaker. He is an active member of the Spanish Society of Obstetrics and Gynecology (SEGO) and its Section of Perinatal Medicine. He has been the coordinator of the Spanish Group of Diabetes in Pregnancy (GEDE). His main research areas are Diabetes and Obesity in Pregnancy, Inflammation in Pregnancy and Fetal Medicine.